

NEW YORK CITY

Prepared to Battle With the Dread Disease, Cholera.

Health Officials Confident of Their Ability to Defeat It.

Valuable Precautionary Measures—Cleanliness the Main Thing—Drink No Milk or Water Contaminated, and Abstain From Butter and Cheese.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Now that Asiatic cholera has developed among the dwellers of this city, each man may ask his neighbor, Well, what of it?

The spirit of the question would show no more than that the speaker had himself, mastered the elementary truths touching this disease, which has been so carefully treated and reiterated by the responsible portion of the city during many days past. The question would indicate that the speaker fully understood that the cholera is neither contagious nor infectious within the common meanings attached to those words. In this sense, it is to use the language of Prof. Virehow, less dangerous than diphtheria.

This expression implies no overconfidence. It lies within each individual's power to assure his personal safety almost beyond a peradventure. He has but to drink no water and milk except such as have been thoroughly boiled, and to eat no food that has not been thoroughly and freshly cooked; he will abstain from butter and cheese, and he may then possess his soul in ease. Cholera will pass him by. Ever since the Moravia arrived in port, as the harbinger of the dreaded plague, state and local officials have been doing every nerve to prevent its gaining a foothold in this city, and being spread by various channels to the country at large.

The health officials have been strict even to severity; but while all were looking seaward, and while preparations were made to repel an invader from across the water, it has quietly made its presence felt in our midst, and every corpse today mark a victim. How did it get in? Is the question on every one's lips. The health officers' faces were puzzled expressions when asked to solve the problem. The boats have been used with lavish hand both at quarantine and in the city; baggage has been disinfected; passengers have been disinfected; and healthy ships, and in the city stringent rules of cleanliness have been laid down and acted upon.

The houses of the dead are not under quarantine in the sense of being shut up, or their tenants being prohibited to go and come when and where they please. But no one is to enter the knowledge of the doctor on duty. The medical sentinel never loses sight for many hours at a time of his charge. His instructions are to the effect that the duties in a tenement full of people are most arduous. He is to register in the first place, under orders of his superior, the names and ages of every person in the house, what they work at and where. If they go out of the house, he is to keep a record of the kind of a lesson for the first symptoms of diarrhea trouble, and upon its appearance put the patient to bed, keep him there and prevent him from leaving, hurrying word around to the health board office. The closets in the house or in the yard are to be his special care. The disinfected person will be ordered to go from house to house all day, and in the direct their operations. All closets in the yard where a case of cholera has occurred must be disinfected twice daily.

The doctor must search every room in the house every few days, and no refuse, garbage, slops or other offal accumulates in cellars, halls or yards, and that the bedrooms are properly ventilated.

The personal cleanliness of every tenant is the special care of the health officer, under orders from headquarters. He must see to it that none of them, not even the smallest child, sit down to his or her meal without washing their hands in hot soap and cleaning the nails as well.

It is through the mouth that the germ of the contagion is spread, and it is to be taught the tenants to burn all garbage, vegetable refuse and old bones in the range when the fire is brisk, and let off the steam into the street. No family must move out of the house without a written permit. To that extent they are quarantined.

Should new cases develop in the house these are his instructions. All discharges from bowels or vomit of sick persons to be received in vessels containing disinfected fluid before emptying into the closet or privy. All soiled bedding, sheets, pillow cases, blankets, handkerchiefs or rags to be burned, and not put into a pail or tub, with disinfected fluid boiled hot, and afterward boiled for half an hour. No drinking vessels or other receptacles used by patients be used without being thoroughly cleaned by boiling soap suds.

The idea is to overwhelm and stamp out the disease in such a manner as to do with the typhus upon its first appearance.

That this could be done was successfully demonstrated in 1867. Other cases are expected to develop from scattered centers of contagion, but none in the same buildings. That is the way the health officers propose to drive the cholera from the city, now it has got in, and if the people and medical men are not into citizens will use reason and not get into a foolish and needless panic. They are sure they will succeed, though they by no means undervalue the danger. Everything is ready for an attack. The hospital is in order, and the proposed cholera camp, the site of which is yet the department's secret, can be occupied on a moment's notice. There is no panic and no undue hurry at sanitary headquarters.

Every possible feature of cholera epidemic has been discussed and provided against.

WEDDING BELLS.

Marriage of Miss Ida Belle Edmunds to Mr. John Duley.

A large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis and of the contracting parties gathered at the home of the bride yesterday afternoon to witness the marriage of their niece, Miss Ida Belle Edmunds to John Duley.

The double parties were thrown open to all, and the wedding was a most brilliant affair. The bride and groom were accompanied by a large number of friends, and the wedding was a most brilliant affair.

The bride is a most lovely young lady who has many warm friends and admirers.

Mr. Duley has for many years been at the State National Bank, and is among the most thriving and popular young business men.

Mr. and Mrs. Duley left later in the afternoon for some time, and upon their return they will be at home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thomas, where they have taken rooms.

THE CHOLERA.

Mayville to Confer With Cincinnati—Quarantine Against the East.

All of the morning papers convey the long dreaded information that cholera has at last gained a foothold in New York City.

The news reached this city last night by dispatches received by the health authorities. One from Health Officer Prendergast of Cincinnati summoned the authorities here to that city to confer with that gentleman, Marshal Heflin and Dr. C. C. Owens, City Physician, went to Cincinnati this morning for that purpose.

It is reported to be the intention of the Health officials of Cincinnati to make Mayville an outpost. To place officers here who will board every train coming from the East to look for suspects. By what right Ohio officials can establish a quarantine station in Kentucky remains to be seen.

Dr. Prendergast says: "I will place officers to day at Mayville, Ky., Loveland, O., and Dayton, O. Every railroad will be guarded and every passenger examined and his baggage disinfected. No immigrants will be allowed in the city and the railroads that bring them here will have to take care of them after the outbreaks have been reached."

If this means that all people coming West on the C. and O. who are liable to have cholera are to be dumped at this city, then we protest.

Would it not be a glorious thing (for Cincinnati) if Mayville would only act the part of a good Samaritan, and take the burden of cholera upon herself that Cincinnati might be relieved of the curse.

The Kentucky State Board of Health should take the matter in hand and let these officials know that Cincinnati can't unload her greasy and pest-ridden immigrants into Kentucky.

If the Cincinnati people want to cooperate with us and help keep the plague out of both places all well and good. But it should be understood that here in Mayville, the Mayville officers will be boss.

The Southern boundary of Ohio is the Ohio river and there her jurisdiction ends.

The best thing for everybody to do is to keep cool and not get excited; be careful what you eat and of your habits, keep yourself and your premises clean and above all don't get scared. The cholera is no worse than many other evils that beset us all the time.

When Messrs. Heflin and Owens return this evening we will know just what is going to be done for the protection of Mayville. All may rest assured that the scourge will be kept out of Mayville if possible.

Officer Stockdale, with all the authority of a Health Officer, has been detailed to meet all trains for the present and to prohibit any man from getting off who has a suspicious look.

Mr. Condit was well founded.

"I would rather trust that medicine than any doctor I know of," says Mrs. Hattie Mason, of Chilton, Carter county. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, this medicine can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases, both for children and adults. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Power & Reynolds.

LAMBERT DAVIS.

Brilliant Nuptials at the Home of the Bride Last Evening.

The marriage of Miss Pannie Davis to Charles Lambert of Cumberland, Md., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Davis, at 6 o'clock last evening, was a very brilliant affair.

Many friends and relatives from a distance were present and the friends of the young bride in this city were there in large numbers.

Miss Clara Davis, a sister of the bride, and Gus White of Cumberland, Md., were the attendants.

The legal ceremony was performed by Judge Thomas R. Pister, and the impressive rites of the Jewish Church were gone through with by Rabbi Chas. Levi of the Plum Street Temple, Cincinnati.

A elegant collation was served by Martin Bros., caterers of this city.

The bride is well and favorably known to a large circle of friends in this city.

The groom is a prominent young business man of Cumberland, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert left on the 8 o'clock train last night for their Eastern home.

Have you ever thought what you would do in case you, or some one of your family, were taken with a severe attack of cholera, cholera morbus, dysentery or diarrhoea. In such cases it is not unusual for fatal results to follow before medical aid can be procured by a physician summoned.

There is nothing that will give permanent relief so quickly as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. It never fails even in the most severe cases either for children or adults. Why not keep it at hand? 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

The Epworth League Entertains.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Lane was the scene of a very pleasant event last Tuesday evening.

On that occasion the Epworth League of the Third Street Church entertained a large number of friends.

Many were present and gave a very interesting and instructive talk which greatly edified the League.

Many expressions of thanks and of appreciation were given to the Committee of Entertainment for the pleasant and social time that was spent by all.

Lessened Demand for the Horse.

It has already been stated that the electric motor has displaced about thirty thousand horses in one year in the street railway service. In cities where the electric motor is in general use the number of horses is going out of the business and private families are turning to the electric motor for their means of locomotion.

PROCLAMATION

Is Now Under Consideration By President Harrison.

It Will Be Aimed at the Grasping Foreign Steamship Companies.

It Will Refuse a Landing to All Vessels Having on Board Cholera Infected Immigrants, and Will See to It That No Ship Disembark Ship Companies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—At the state department it is stated that an important proclamation will issue from that department soon. In other official quarters it is intimated that the document will bear upon the cholera question. Inasmuch as the proclamation or statement will issue from the state and not the treasury department, it may be supposed that President Harrison's intentions were officially made that the president had in mind a proclamation which would refuse a landing to cholera ships having on board cholera infected immigrants, and would turn back to their ports of embarkation the entire cargoes of human and other freight.

It has been a serious question in the minds of the president, the secretary of the treasury and other officials, whether it would be either lawful or just to refuse a landing to American citizens simply because they sailed from ports infected with cholera, or were passengers with cholera, who were either from or had died with cholera. And yet there was another side to this point at issue. To refuse a landing to cholera ships would mean that cholera infected immigrants simply because they sailed from infected ports or were with infected passengers, and at the same time admit to the United States the danger of infection, would not only be a violation of the spirit of harmonious international relations, but would also be a violation of the spirit of the immigration laws, which the immigrants would be allowed to land.

It is reported that President Harrison has determined to put at least a stop to immigration from infected ports at all hazards, and if not by appeals to the humanity of the steamship companies, he will resort to the use of extreme powers at the hand of the chief executive.

It is not impossible that the particular statement of President Harrison Wednesday afternoon at the department of state will relate to the Venezuela trouble, and will be intended to bring about a serious trouble, and the president defer his cholera proclamation for a day or two for that reason.

At the same time, the president is standing by the president in his position towards quarantine and the cholera, letters are coming daily to the White House from the various officials of large cities of the west, especially affected by the influx of immigrants. Among the letters are those from the mayors of Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and other Ohio cities, pleading the president for his prompt action, and urging a stringent enforcement against immigration. They one and all advise a total suspension or prohibition of immigration from infected ports, and to please with immigration, and thus he has full power to turn them back and not allow them to land.

Safe Robbed.

VALPARAISO, Sept. 15.—Masked robbers Tuesday night drilled the safe at the Dulany Clock works. The night watchman was gagged and bound with ropes, and the safe was broken in a manner indicating the work of professionals. The plunder consisted of about $100 in money and many valuable papers. No clue to the perpetrators.

Paying the Penalty.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The steamship companies are paying a heavy penalty for their carelessness in allowing cholera infected immigrants to board their ships. The Hamburg-American liner Columbia, left Wednesday without a single passenger, cabin or steerage, after being detained at a quarantine station. They carried only ballast.

Defeated Candidate Succeeds.

LODONVILLE, O., Sept. 15.—Fred Smith, aged 50, a prominent and well-known local politician, was defeated in a contest for the office of county clerk, and was defeated in the recent election for justice of the peace, and was defeated in the contest for the office of justice of the peace.

A Contractor's Fall.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 15.—Arthur Donnelly, a member of the firm of Donnelly and Lewis, contractors, who are building sewers here, fell from the fourth story window of the Palace Hotel, Wednesday morning, and was killed. He was injured in a fall from the fourth story window of the Palace Hotel, Wednesday morning, and was killed.
